WIGWAM TAKES OSBORNE

Selected for District Attorney on Regular Ticket—Municipal Ownership Crowd Make No Selection.

New York's Campaign

Tammany nominated James W. Osborne for district attorney; renominated Justices Gildersleeve and Ingraham and named a full county and borough ticket.

The Municipal Ownership convention nominated W. R. Hearst for mayor.

The Republican committee on vacancies selected William M. Ivins for mayor.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—The last twenty-four hours have teemed with political sensations in Greater New York.

Tammany did the unexpected and, rejecting Jerome of reform fame, selected James W. Osborne for district attorney, in addition to naming a full county and borough ticket, the naming of which seemed to meet with approval at the several conventions.

Then there were others. The municipal ownership convention, which met in Carnegie Hall, named with great acclaim W. R. Hearst as its candidate for mayor of Greater Gotham.

The Republicans, after a long hunt, discovered a standard-bearer for the majority in William M. Ivins, a well-known lawyer and Independent of Gotham.

It was toward the Tammany convention, which was to name a candidate for district attorney, that most attention was directed and the result may mean much to the ultimate success of the Tammany.

Jerome Turned Down.

Tammany has turned down Jerome. Yelling like a band of Comanches on the warpath, the delegates to the county convention named James W. Osborne in his stead.

There was a wild outburst of Tammany joy when the first time the intimation came from the platform that Jerome was "to be thrown out of the window."

To 3,400 of the 3,500 persons in the hall the first hint of it came when John F. McIntyre, a former assistant district attorney, mounted the platform.

It was the biggest and noisiest convention Tammany has held in many years—a real old time convention—and when the crowd realized that Jerome was to be slaughtered there was a war dance.

The din could be heard in Broadway. The delegates and the thousands of spectators were kept waiting nearly an hour while Boss Murphy and the district leaders fought out the question. The crowd realized that Jerome was to be slaughtered there was a war dance.

When Chairman Knox announced that he was ready to receive nominations for district attorney, there was an outburst of applause from the audience, which had been waiting impatiently for this event. They had been listening while the crowd was naming justices of the supreme court.

Braves Were Anxious.

What they wanted to know was what Tammany was going to do with Jerome. They cheered a great deal more when John F. McIntyre threatened his way through the mob to the chairman's side.

"There is no suspicion on Tammany Hall," he said. "Not one of us has been involved in the insurance scandals which have shocked the civilized world. That was left to the Depews and the Decision of Church Committee That Angels Should Be Represented as Men Caused Discussion.

"ANGEL" DESTROYER QUIET ABOUT AFFAIR

Sculptor Mothe-Borghun, Who Smashed Two Marble Images Because of Adverse Criticism, Will Not Discuss the Incident.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Sculptor J. Gutzen Mothe-Borghun will not discuss his action in wrecking the two marble angels, work of art he had labored on for months.

The angels of the Annunciation and the Resurrection were to have occupied prominent places in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

They were female angels. Eminent divines declared that there was no authority in the Bible for making any angel in the female form, and of necessity they should be masculine.

Sculptor Mothe-Borghun, incensed at those who could see nothing but the flesh in things spiritual, took a hammer and chisel and ruined the works.

Schiffs, who went about berating and abusing Tammany Hall. On January 1 there will be inducted into office a successor to the present district attorney.

At this the audience broke into wild cheering, which lasted for half a minute.

"It has been mooted about in the press and otherwise for months that we have not the character and the ability for a district attorney. That is wrong. Now I propose to present to your consideration a Tammany Hall Democrat. About his Democracy there has never been any suspicion. The occupant of this office should be one free from errandisms. If he is elected he will be a district attorney free from sensationalism, and who will not pursue sensations at the expense of human happiness. I nominate James W. Osborne, who will give all a square deal."

George Gordon Battle, who opposed Mr. Osborne in the trial of the Molinoux case, seconded the nomination. The nomination went through with a whoop.

In a mass convention which in point of enthusiasm formed a marked contrast to the listless convention of the regular party organizations the municipal ownership ticket, with William R. Hearst at its head, was placed in the field in Carnegie Hall.

The nominee was the central figure of the convention. The speakers dwelt upon his fight against the trusts and bitterly assailed Tammany Hall and Mayor McClellan for their alleged connection with the gas companies.

There was an unexpected test of the feeling of the convention toward District Attorney Jerome, and it was decidedly hostile. Henry Clay Peters, in seconding the nomination of Mr. Stokes, suggested that Mr. Jerome be placed upon the ticket. There was a scattering of applause which was quickly drowned in groans and hisses. It is unlikely that Mr. Jerome will be nominated.

DR. WILEY DESCRIBES CHEMICAL PLANTS ABROAD

A meeting of the Washington Chemical Society was held in the assembly room of the Cosmos Club last night. After routine business had been transacted and papers read by Dr. W. A. Noyes and Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, the members enjoyed a smoker until well past midnight. Dr. Wiley read a paper on his recent trip abroad in the interest of the food inspection laws of this country. He visited many of the large European chemical plants in the last summer, and described several of the monster plants of Germany and France.

JAPAN COMES DOWN ON GRAFT IN NAVY

Embezzling Officers Get Heavy Sentences.

MAY IMPOSE DEATH PENALTY

Tokyo Authorities Considering Making Theft From Government High Treason—Paymaster Short in Accounts.

TOKYO, Oct. 13.—The Japanese government is determined to use most drastic means to stamp out the spirit of graft which has made its first appearance in the Japanese public service.

The courts dealt with commendable promptitude in the case of Paymaster Taigi, of the navy, who has been convicted of embezzlement, and sentenced to seven years' imprisonment, and Lieutenant Commander Sakuma, who was sentenced to two years' imprisonment for the same offense. Both of these officers were connected with the Malsuru navy yard.

It has been announced that Paymaster Takerouchi, who has had charge of the work of naval construction in England, is short in his accounts more than 200,000 yen. There are intimations of other officers having used government money illegitimately.

In view of these developments, it is understood, that the Japanese government has under consideration a proposition to make the embezzlement of government funds high treason, punishable by death.
